

HAITI

A strong earthquake of magnitude 7 degrees in the Richter scale has devastated the west of Haiti. The most affected city is cardinal Port au Prince, where hundreds of buildings have been ruined with thousands of persons in his interior.

Great part of the city is without electricity or telephone. The people meet in the streets, ignite bonfires and try to help his neighbours. When they see the Doctors' emblem Without Borders, they run to requesting aid. There is an enormous solidarity. The quake untied the panic between the populations. "The whole world was trembling, was like a dance, the people were going out of the vehicles, were running and shouting ", told a witness to the agency Efe, who said besides the fact that "a road was opened by the half ".

The impoverished country has a history of natural disasters and of political chaos. Approximately 9.000 policemen and soldiers of the UNO are opened in his territory to support the order.

It hurts my me know the people who has died they never had parents, children, friends, animal servants, works, hopes, plans, recollections and a future ... anything that already they will not have.

From: Samar Bouchra